Here and There

THE California general strike ended today, and regardless what happens in the maritime union quarrel from which the trouble started peace will return in the next day or two to the rest of California's industry.

Dr. Z. A. Hooper Commits Suicide at Patmos Home

Physician Moved Here From Idabel, Okla., Several Months Ago

INQUEST IS WAIVED

Unnecessary, Says Coroner Weaver After Viewing Body

Dr. Z. A. Hooper, 56, was found shot to death late Wednesday at his home near Patmos, southern Hempstead county.

A shotgun, fired once, lay at his side. It was apparent that he committed suicide, Dr. J. H. Weaver, county coroner, said.

After repeated threats by Dr. Hooper to take his life because of poor health, relatives removed all weapons from the house, but when his wife and 12-year-old daughter left Wednesday for a visit to Hope Dr. Hooper went to a neighbor and borrowed a 12-gauge shotgun, ostensibly to kill a quail.

Returning home, he went into his room, placed the barrel in his mouth and pulled the trigger.

J. G. Grant, father-in-law of the dead man was sitting on the front porch. He heard the report of the gun and a thud as the body struck the floor.

Dr. Hooper was dead, his head virtually torn from his body when Grant reached his side.

Coroner Weaver was called, viewed the body and announced that no inquest was necessary.

Dr. Hooper formerly lived at Idabel, Okla., removing to Hempstead county several months ago.

Funeral and burial services will be held near Patmos Thursday afternoon. Surviving are his wife and one daughter.

Shipp Improving, Physicians Report

Motorcycle Rider Able to Ask Questions and Make Replies

George Shipp, 21-year-old cyclist who barely missed death in an accident here Tuesday night, was described by physicians at Josephine hospital Thursday afternoon as "steadily improving."

Although not out of danger, Shipp is able to ask questions and give answers.

Jess Sandifer, injured in an accident early Tuesday morning in which his son, Frank, 14, was killed, is improving, Jason McClure, also hurt in the Sandifer wreck, was removed from the hospital to his home near Bodcaw.

Rebel Dakota Legislature Convenes

Farmers Threaten to March; Langer Ousted by Olson

Lieutenant Governor Obtains Support of Dakota National Guard

ANOTHER FERGUSON?

Mrs. Langer Boomed as Substitute for Her Convicted Husband

BISMARCK, N. D.—(AP)—The House of Representatives convened Thursday in defiance of the orders of Acting Governor Olson.

Olson New Governor BISMARCK, N. D.—(AP)—Lieutenant Governor Ole H. Olson, acting governor, took physical possession of the chief executive's office in the capitol here at 10 a. m. Thursday morning.

He merely walked into the office accompanied by two friends.

National Guardsmen were posted at the same time in the corridors, where a proclamation was posted revoking the special session of the legislature that had been called by William Langer, the ousted governor.

The assembly rooms were locked. There was no disturbance.

The legislature, favoring Langer, had indicated they would attempt the wholesale impeachment of state officials unfriendly to him and might include the four Supreme Court judges who ruled Langer's conviction of a felony in the federal district court, disqualified him for office.

May Run His Wife BISMARCK, N. D.—(AP)—The beginning of a boom for Mrs. William Langer as a substitute gubernatorial candidate for her husband, deposed as governor, was forecast Thursday by political leaders.

Meanwhile guardsmen were held in readiness as reports circulated that hundreds, perhaps thousands, of farmers were planning to converge on the capital city to support Langer in whatever action he may demand.

Olson Is Winner BISMARCK, N. D.—(AP)—Acting Governor Ole H. Olson Wednesday apparently gathered in control of the state's military forces after the Supreme court has sustained him in his contest with the ousted governor, William A. Langer.

The chief of the National Guard, Adj. Gen. Earl S. Sargent, after remaining noncommittal for many hours in the battle for the governorship, bowed to the authority of the lieutenant governor by announcing he would carry out Olson's order to "withdraw from active service all officers and enlisted men called into the service" by executive command of Langer last night.

That order of Langer's followed a few hours upon the decision of the Supreme Court last night that conviction of a federal felony had disqualified him for the high office.

Sargent said he would recognize the "legal governor" whoever he may be, as any oath of office prescribes. Olson further directed Sargent to maintain in active service "under your orders" such numbers of officers and men needed to protect the "administration of government and preserve the property of the state."

Italls Arkansas War LITTLE ROCK.—The controversy over the governorship of North Dakota has given rise to discussion of events that culminated in the Brooks-Eaton war in Arkansas in 1874, an unofficial war in which several lives were lost of Elisha Baxter and Joseph Brooks in fighting over the claimed rights to the office of governor.

In 1872 the Republican party, then a factor in Arkansas politics, was split into two factions. The "regular" Republicans nominated Baxter for the governor's chair and the "national liberal" Republicans nominated Brooks. The Democratic party did not nominate a candidate but endorsed Brooks.

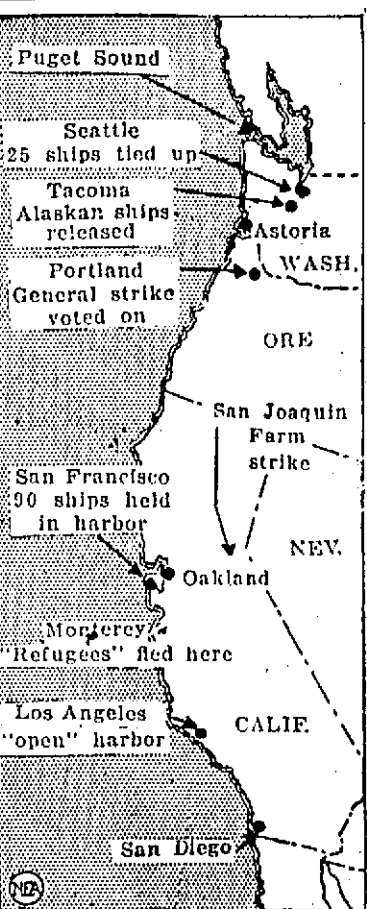

The election, held November 5, 1872, resulted in Brooks being declared the winner by 2,948 votes. Brooks supporters held a convention in Little Rock January 4, 1873, two days before the legislature was to meet, they apparently intended to make a dispute of the disputed election before the legislature.

Que Werriano WritSought Acting Governor O. A. Hildy placed the capitol under the guard of Powell Clayton's militia as the Brooks men gave up for the first time their efforts to seat Brooks. The legislature continued in session until April 25, and on June 3, Attorney General T. E. W. Yonley instituted a writ of habeas corpus to oust Brooks. The court dismissed the action declaring it had no jurisdiction.

Meanwhile, so it is reported by his-

Principal Milburn Is Not Re-Elected

But Other Faculty Decisions Unavailable from Board

Richard Milburn, principal of Hope High School for the past two years has resigned and will not return here for the next term.

That was about all that could be learned from two members of the school board Thursday when The Star sought to obtain a story announcing next year's faculty.

The school board held a meeting nearly two weeks ago. The board decided not to elect Mr. Milburn. It leaked out Thursday that he would not return.

Dr. Don Smith, president of the board, said that he didn't have the faculty list, but admitted there had been some changes. He said that Miss Beryl Henry had a list and that she was "away somewhere—up about Bentonville, I think."

Theo P. Witt, secretary of the board, confirmed the fact that Mr. Milburn would not return. Asked as to others on the faculty, Mr. Witt said: "I had rather for you to wait until Miss Henry returns. The faculty has not quite been completed."

Hempstead County Crops Begin to Show Extensive Drouth Damage

Withering heat baked Hempstead county again Thursday with temperatures above the 100 mark.

The highest reading at the Fruit & Truck Branch Experiment Station was 102, recorded at 2:30 p. m.

Wednesday's high was 105, the hottest day so far this summer.

Crops are beginning to burn from the heat wave and lack of moisture, especially in the southeastern part of the county where little rain has fallen in the past month.

Sharp Distrust of Employers, Behind California Strike

Secret Report of Washington Mediator Reveals Bitter Grudge

U. S. SHIP SUBSIDIES

Subsidized Mail Lines Have Fought Organized Labor the Hardest

By RODNEY DUTCHER NEA Washington Correspondent WASHINGTON.—There's a man here who worked long and conscientiously to settle the Pacific coast longshoremen's strike.

He came here a while ago to report an agreement—arriving almost simultaneously with telegrams from San Francisco showing the agreement had broken down. He is a good man just the same, and now has another important government job. As the general strike was declared, he commented:

"You can't mediate a revolution!"

Why the Bitterness He didn't want his name used, but he gave me some background that may interest you, too. He named the three chief causes of the existing situation as:

1. A long history of suppression of labor unions by employers, resulting in bitterness and complete distrust of employers.

2. The calling of troops against the longshoremen, which created such resentment as to make mediation impossible.

3. Insurgency of large rank-and-file groups which howled down conciliatory proposals from conservative A. F. of L. officials and mediators.

Both employers and employees were determined to make a closed shop open shop finish fight issue. Employers weakened first, but too late.

Mediators found the hardest steamship companies to deal with were those which drew the most money from the government in ocean mail subsidies—the Dollar and Matson lines.

When Force Is Tried Although Roosevelt was deep-sea fishing as the strike broke, many of his aides here were scared stiff. The whole administration labor policy, which once seemed strong but broke down many months ago and has wiggled and wobbled ever since, was involved.

The possibility of being forced to use federal troops in a labor dispute came to officials already badly worried by the dangerous potentialities of clashes between militia and mobs.

It is pointed out that, aside from the fact no one knows what a large angry mob will do, National Guard operations against strikers in large cities are likely to do more harm than good. In smaller communities militia measures may even trouble.

After militia was used in San Francisco a waterfront strike became a general strike. In Minneapolis, where militiamen were called out, an agreement has broken down and the situation is more serious than ever. In Toledo, despite troops, strikers were strong enough to win a satisfactory agreement. Unless results such as Toledo's are achieved, these situations seem to demand more troops and more bloodshed.

Cream for Communists You'll hear more and more about Communists in the next few months, and some of it will be true. A strong federal drive against Communist labor agitators is more than a possibility.

Communists are likely to be found wherever labor unrest simmers. Their mission is to make angry workers more militant, to get them accustomed to fighting employers and authorities—and to victory, if possible. They don't preach the world revolution to masses of A. F. of L. workers—yet. They have swung from recent habits of isolated, ineffective demonstrations to the old policy of bombing from within.

No one here gives Communists credit for the San Francisco, Minneapolis or Toledo upheavals. But they helped. Federal mediators keep telling employers the only way to keep out "reds" from influencing labor troubles is to be more conciliatory with their regular workers.

Of course the term "red" is often used indiscriminately against sincere labor leaders and honest labor causes. The Communists, who like to be considered more important than they are, think that's swell.

U.S. Bombers Take Coast Governor Off for Alaska

10 Planes Leave Washington on First Hop to Dayton, Ohio

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Ten bombers, comprising the Alaska flight squadron of the Army Air Corps, hopped off from Bolling Field at 9 o'clock Central Standard Time (Hope) Thursday morning for Dayton on the first leg of their 8,000-mile flight to Alaska, and return.

It was the walkout of 12,000 Pacific coast longshoremen, whom Bridges represented, that precipitated the general strike in the San Francisco area, beginning last Monday. Bridges' comments were made in an interview.

Edward D. Vandulter, chairman of the General Strike Committee, hearing of the Bridges incident, sent word from a conference of delegates that in his opinion, "the general strike is not over."

These developments followed a formal call of the Federal Longshoremen's Strike Board for immediate cancellation of all walkouts and subordination of all central issues—those in the longshoremen's and maritime workers' strikes—to collective bargaining and arbitration.

General Walkout Is Ended by Vote at San Francisco

Pressure Brought to Bear by City, State and the United States

BUSINESS ROLLING

Food and Gasoline More Plentiful in San Francisco District

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif.—(AP)—The San Francisco general strike committee late Thursday voted to end the mass walkout of union labor.

The vote to end the general strike was 191 to 174.

Strike Is Relaxing The wheels of business in the metropolitan area here moved again Thursday under a relaxing on the brakes of the general strike.

Under pressure of the federal, state and city governments the strike strategy committee of Alameda county, in which ½ million residents of the area are affected, announced that a vote would be taken Thursday night on a proposal to end the walkout.

Chops reopened Thursday, food and gasoline sales normal, and more street cars appeared.

Officials, however, remained alert for danger signals.

Strike Is Weakening SAN FRANCISCO.—(AP)—Public statements which in effect called upon organized labor to discontinue the general strike in San Francisco were issued late Wednesday by Hugh S. Johnson, NRA administrator and government spokesman in the dispute, and by Mayor Angelo J. Rossi.

The statements came amid rapidly developing events in which powerful influences began to work toward unified action for ending the extended strike of Pacific coast maritime workers and the mass walkout of 100,000 workers here in support of the maritime unions.

Meantime Harry Bridges, militant Leftist leader of striking longshoremen, remarked to newsmen "that the general strike is over, but the longshoremen are not beaten."

Later Bridges repudiated his comment.

Johnson Is Spokesman Johnson, who only an hour or so previously had been designated government spokesman in negotiations between the Federal Longshore Strike Board and the shipping operators involved in the dispute said:

"I came here to do what the federal government can do to aid these coast communities to settle their troubles. It is their job in the first instance, but the federal government cannot act under the continuing coercion of the general strike. The first step to peace and agreement is to lift that strike. Until that is done I have nothing to offer."

Rossi said: "In the presence of the general strike, nothing can be arbitrated or accomplished; the strike must be ended."

Bridges Quoted Four newsmen, including an Associated Press reporter, said they had understood Bridges to say "the strike is over." He was quoted further as saying, "The reason the general strike is 'busted' is first, the street car men going back to work; second, the lifting of the ban on food and gasoline, and third, mismanagement of the general strike."

Your Health

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygienic Health Magazine

Summer May Bring On Intestinal Disorder.

During these hot days, when you have modified your diet somewhat, and particularly when foods are likely to spoil, you should be particularly watchful of inflammation of the intestines.

Furthermore, the possibility of such inflammation is intensified by the fact that your diet probably contains more fluids in summer than it does in winter, and, in addition, the heat tends to some extent to disorganize the temperature mechanism of the body.

Finally, this condition can come from so many other causes that it cannot be classified as a distinct disease, but must be considered in relationship to specific causes.

You may believe you have cramps or stomach ache and may complain of the symptoms of diarrhea when you have an inflammation of the intestines. But before the right kind of treatment can be given, and before repeated attacks can be prevented, it is necessary to fix the responsibility on some definite, and usually single, cause.

In children, sudden attacks of pain in the bowels, and which are frequently due to a wrong diet. The old stomach ache due to eating green apples was of this type.

However, the overeating of foods which stimulate action of the bowels also is likely to bring on irritability, with a certain amount of inflammation.

In most cases when persons are sensitive to food substances, they respond to the eating of such food with irritability of the bowel and with excessive activity.

There are also certain drugs which have a specific effect on the bowel and which, if taken in sufficient quantity, will cause extreme irritation. This applies particularly to drugs like arsenic, mercury, and other poisonous substances.

Far less frequently than is usually believed to be the case, material in the bowel ferments, because of unfavorable bacteria that are present with a resulting intoxication of the body as a whole and with a reaction within the bowel manifested by looseness and straining.

Of course, a severe infection with any of the bacterial organisms that are known to be dangerous to the human body, when they attack the bowel will have an exceedingly bad result.

Inflammation of the bowel with the symptoms that have been mentioned also is not infrequently a complication of various infectious disease, particularly typhoid fever, tuberculosis, and dysentery.

Sometimes infections of the bowel occur in association with operations within the abdomen, and occasionally serious disturbances of the circulation of the blood will be reflected in an inflammation of the bowel.

Sea Serpent Isn't A Myth, He Insists—Officer Says Proof of Its Existence Is Abundant

By BRUCE CATTON
Take the word of an officer and a gentleman for it—you're not being as smart as you think you are, if you laugh at all these stories about sea serpents.

The gentlemanly officer in question is Lieut. Comm. R. T. Gould of the British navy. He has just written a book, "The Case of the Sea Serpent," in which he asserts bluntly that there's a lot more in this sea serpent talk than most of us have supposed.

Mr. Gould has undertaken the prodigious task of reviewing practically all sea serpent stories since 1800. And he demonstrates pretty clearly that a lot of them are altogether too substantial to be pook-pooked.

Over and over again, he says, reports of sea serpents have come from men whose honesty cannot be questioned, and who were competent observers unlikely to be deceived by glimpses of whales, schools of porpoises or the other things which are commonly supposed to be the basis of sea serpent stories.

Hard-boiled Gloucester fishermen made detailed reports of a sea monster more than a century ago. A British naval captain risked his professional reputation by reporting such a creature to the admiralty in 1848.

Cuts Must Be Cleaned of Dirt Before Antiseptic Is Applied

The three steps to take in administering to cuts are outlined by Olive Roberts Barton in another article in a series on summer accidents.

The usual procedure when a child comes in all bloodied up from a cut, is to rush for the vaseline or some other healing salve, clap on a chunk of it, and then tie a bandage on tight.

Healing unguents are all very fine, and no mother could raise a family without them, but for a fresh new cut they are better off for the moment right on the bathroom shelf.

First aid for cuts consists of three things. To wash the dirt out, get to the bleeding stopped and to use an antiseptic. One thing about these germ-killers I think is worth mentioning. They are not only safety-guards, but assume responsibility and give the mother a feeling of relief.

Use Peroxide or Iodine
So when Johnny comes roaring in with his finger or toe dripping, take the member in your hand and have a good look. It is necessary to know whether the cut is shallow or deep. If it looks ugly and you know it is bleeding more than is healthy, send for Dr. Blank. However, go at it yourself first. Bathe it. Get all visible dirt out. And then hunt up your antiseptic. Perhaps you like peroxide. It has a habit of boiling up and out. Or put on iodine. No harm using both if you like.

Now wet a piece of clean old linen (mentioned in the bathroom kit) with water (a bit of salt in it) and press down on the cut, keeping the edges closed if possible until bleeding slows up. Then tie a clean bandage around it loosely. Not tight. Air is a healer. Change the bandage as soon as it becomes blood soaked. The bleeding will probably stop in a few minutes.

Applying a Touriquet
If the wound is a deep one and you are far from a doctor the tourniquet may be used—that is, something tight tied near the cut to stop the severed vessel from emptying too fast. It should be tied between the cut and the body. But tourniquets are only used in the greatest emergencies. They must not be tied so tight as to cut off all other circulation and they cannot be left on too long. However, in extreme cases they have their use.

The big thing is always to get the doctor when things look bad. Bandages stick sometimes when removed and take the healing scab with them. This opens up a new raw surface. After a wound is thoroughly closed and has started to heal, your doctor may suggest a thin application of ointment that will defend the scab. Or he may show you how a slight dampening in warm water (a little salt for safety's sake) will allow the bandage to peel easily without disturbing the healed crust.

Follow Routine of Film Stars to Bring Out Latent Beauty

The minute a woman makes up her mind that she is a certain type or decides that she truly wants to be one, her battle for charm and beauty is partly won. When she's mapped out routines which are stepping stones toward that goal, she's well on the road to achievement. After that she must just stick to the rules she's laid down for herself.

Screen stars have led the way. One look at an old picture of a famous one in 1917 and got torpedoed two days later—and to this day survivors of his crew insist that the creature jinxed them.

Mr. Gould doesn't think that the creature in question is a serpent, however. He suspects that it is a descendant of the prehistoric plesiosaurus, still roaming the seas. Whatever it is, he insists that the proof of its existence is altogether too solid to be ignored.

beauty and another glimpse of her as she looks today should prove to any girl of determination and ambition that it's possible to improve hair, skin and figure and to look individual.

For instance there's Joan Crawford—always a pretty girl but certainly not a great beauty until she learned what to do about herself. First of all, Joan lost a good many pounds. She exercised while she was dieting so that her skin retained a firm, youthful look. Then she changed her coiffure. Instead of continuing to cover up her forehead—foreheads really are lovely, you know—she cut her hair and now brushes it backward.

Her eyes were her next important consideration. She knew they were beautiful but she knew, too, that she hadn't been making the most of them. Arching the brows and using the right mascara did the trick. After that she turned her attention to her mouth. It is wide and full and Joan wanted to make the best of it. Hence she started using lipstick generously and applying it from corner to corner. No dainty little cupid's bow for Joan Crawford—She leaves that kind of makeup to petite blondes who have decided that they're the delicate, Dresden china type.

Babe Ruth Injured by a Batted Ball

Former Home Run King Out of Game for Next Two Weeks

CLEVELAND.—(P)—The New York Yankees suffered a double setback Wednesday. They lost the fourth and final game of their series with the Cleveland Indians 15 to 14, in a wild slugfest, as well as the services of Babe Ruth who was struck in the leg by a batted ball and will be out of the game for two weeks.

Going into the final inning trailing 12 to 9, the Yanks rallied the score five runs. They contrived them from singles by Dixie Walker and Red Rolfe, pinch hitters and Earl Combs and Ben Chapman, an outfield fly by Houg and error by Hale and a late throw by Lee.

Ruth was knocked out in the third inning, when he was struck by a smashing drive off the bat of Lou Gehrig as the former home run king was running from first to second. The force of the blow knocked Ruth down and he was assisted off the field. Dr. M. H. Castle, the Indian's team physician, said Ruth suffered a severe contusion of the left shin bone and advised that he remain off his feet for at least a week. Dr. Castle said it would be advisable for Ruth to stay out of the game for two weeks.

A. & M. Hearing Set for July 24

Attorney Wilson Announces Meeting Against Three Trustees

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—R. W. Wilson, attorney representing more than 1,000 petitioners who have asked for dismissal of three members of the Monticello A. & M. board of trustees on the ground that they are equally guilty with John W. Richardson, ousted trustee, announced Thursday that a hearing would be conducted at the college armory next Tuesday, July 24.

Richardson was ousted by Governor Futrell on complaints of mismanagement and the sale of products to the college at excessive prices.

The man who always says what he thinks often fails to think what he says.

It was learned Wednesday. In his long report to the president, Green charges that a Communist revolution in America is on the program. Instructions have been sent from Russia on street fighting, hunger riots and the general fomentation of trouble, the report says.

Green also intimates that the International Longshoremen's Association spearhead union in the San Francisco general strike, has a strong Communist element. He traces also Communist penetration of steel and textile unions. Both industries have been embroiled in strike threats during the last year.

1 Dead, 6 Injured in Panama 'Quake'

Electric Timing at Canal Disorganized for Two Hours

By the Associated Press
An American soldier is dead, six persons are injured and some property damage is reported resulting from a series of earthquake shocks felt in Panama Tuesday and Wednesday.

Two soldiers at Fort Davis leaped from windows at the Fort Davis barracks as one of the tremors reached a climax. One of them, Pvt. Kenneth L. Kinnam of Elmira, N. Y., died of his injuries. Pvt. John Conroy was injured.

Reports at Panama City from Christ-tique province described destruction of three houses and damage to eight others in David City where 31 tremors were reported since 8:30 p. m. Tuesday.

The worst shocks were felt at 8:37 p. m. Tuesday, 11:01 p. m. Tuesday and 12:10 p. m. Wednesday. At least 15 intermediate shocks of lesser intensity were counted.

All electric timing in the Panama Canal was disorganized for two hours. Four were injured at David City in the destruction of several adobe buildings.

The steamers Tuscaloosa City and Point Sur, off the border of Panama and Costa Rica on the Pacific side reported feeling a severe shock Tuesday night at 8:36 p. m.

ATLANTA CAPTURES

the Rabbits here Thursday afternoon in an effort to even up the series. A defeat for the Storks will give the first-half championship to Atlanta.

A victory for the locals will give each team two wins, and the fifth and final game then going to Texarkana. Carroll Schooley pitched Wednesday's contest and was bombarded for 20 hits. The Storks collected 11 off Glass. All day for Atlanta, hit a home run, two doubles and a single out of five trips to the plate.

Nearly 17 billion dollars of American money is privately invested in foreign countries.

Six times more poultry and game are killed by common rats than by all the snakes, owls, weasels and hawks combined.

Ed F. McDonald

To the Democratic Voters of Arkansas:

The office of Secretary of State is a most important one. Its many duties are so varied and so complex as to require careful and able co-ordination. Much of its work is quite technical, requiring unquestionable accuracy and a thorough knowledge of the State Government. It is a kind of clearing house for general information concerning State Laws, Legislative Records, Corporation Records, both Domestic and Foreign, as well as numerous other matters of vital importance to the people of Arkansas.

It is, therefore, most important that the Secretary of State be TRAINED in the minute details of the department. He must also be qualified, both by education and general experience, if this department is to function properly and be conducted in an efficient and courteous manner.

Refunding

The Act recently passed by the General Assembly providing for the refunding of the State's indebtedness is one of the most important and far-reaching pieces of legislation enacted in many years and is doing more to restore the credit of our State than any other one thing.

By virtue of this office, the Secretary of State is the Secretary of the Refunding Board and is thereby the sole keeper of the records of said Board.

Much time will be required during the next two years to carry out the program of the Refunding Board and it is extremely necessary that the proceedings of this Board be duly recorded and accurately kept.

ED F. McDONALD set up the present records and is therefore in a position to render prompt and efficient service as the Secretary of the Board.

Platform

Economy in every phase of the State Government will be necessary in order to relieve the financial situation of Arkansas.

As Secretary of State, ED F. McDONALD has fully co-operated in the effort to reduce the cost of government. He pledges full support to any movement for an efficient and economical administration of the affairs of the State and for the development of the resources of Arkansas.

Record

ED F. McDONALD is asking for re-election solely upon his own merits and his record of service. He is qualified by experience and ability to fill the office of Secretary of State for the next two years in a prompt, efficient and courteous manner.

His campaign pledge is to so conduct the affairs of the office of Secretary of State, that no voter will have cause to regret the support given him.

ED F. McDONALD seeks re-election on his qualifications and official record.

Born and reared in Grant County. Educated in the Public Schools of the State and in the University of Arkansas.

Taught in the Public Schools for many years and holds a State Life License as a Teacher.

Licensed to practice law in the State. Served as Sheriff and Clerk of Grant County. Your vote and support are solicited and will be appreciated.

Forty Years Ago
I've wandered to the village, Tom,
I've sat beneath the tree,
Upon the schoolhouse play-ground,
That sheltered you and me,
But none was left to greet me, Tom,
And few were left to know,
Who played with me upon the green,
Just forty years ago...

The above poem was thoroughly demonstrated on Wednesday when Arch Christian and his brothers and sisters came back to the "village" to see how very much we have changed since "Forty Years Ago." "Arch" as all of his own friends knew him, was the son of Hope's first city treasurer, the late J. B. Christian, who was one of Hope's substantial citizens during her village days, and in their ride over the city Wednesday, gentle, mournful memory bell dreamily waited "Arch" and his brothers and sisters back to the recollections of their early childhood, when a cotton compress occupied the place where now stands our beautiful city hall, and the old wading pool and circus lot cut the city into new beautiful home cities, with lovely flowers and sloping lawns, our once mud-filled streets have all been paved, and in the language of "Arch," the beauty and improvement

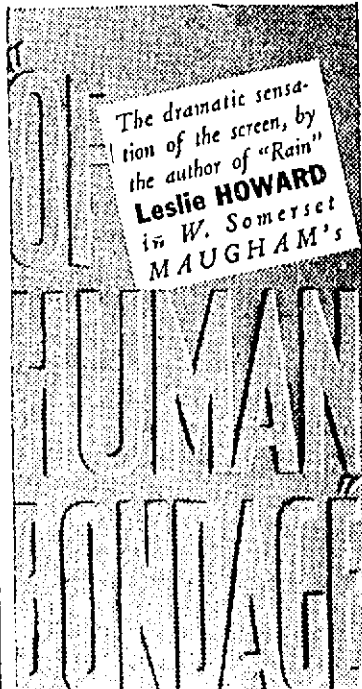

NO MORE YELLOW SKIN FOR HOWETT

C. R. Howett, salesman, writes: "J. C. Mendenhall, Evansville, Ind. I have delayed answering your letter as I have been waiting to see the results of taking your medicine. I did as you advised, took one bottle Mendenhall's Chill and Fever Tonic, without arsenic and followed with the second bottle, and have taken two bottles. People all over my territory are congratulating me on my looks as my skin is no longer yellow and the jaundiced look and chronic malaria and chills have left me. I thank you a thousand times and you may use my name any time you wish, as I feel that I am cured." Mendenhall's Chill Tonic without arsenic, should be taken in place of quinine for malaria, chills, fevers, colds, "flu" or gripe. Mendenhall's Chill Tonic, with arsenic, is the most successful agent in the treatment of chronic malaria, bilious, intermittent or malarial fever. Improves the appetite, strength and condition of the blood. Made by J. C. Mendenhall, Evansville, Ind., druggist since 1873.

Barham to Preach on Divine Healing

Evangelist Declares Privilege of Early Church Still Exists

Evangelist W. S. Barham, who is conducting the revival in the skating rink on North Main street, will preach Thursday night on the subject of "Divine Healing" as it is taught in the word of God.

Mr. Barham says that the message will deal with covenant blessings, and the fact that God is the same, having no variables, or shadow of turning, that as healing was the privilege of the early church, so it is a privilege today.

The evangelist's wife, Mrs. W. S. Barham, who is visiting for the night, will sing during the service. Mr. Barham's mother, Mrs. C. O. Barham, and his brother-in-law, the Rev. Phinias Lewis of Dallas will be in the services Thursday night.

An American has claimed a world's record for a delayed parachute drop, but ours will be delayed longer than that.

Brooks' suit against Baxter, and Brooks took charge of the capital, placing armed guards in the emergency area. The building, following a detailed survey by T. J. Collier Jr., field representative of the Federal Emergency Relief Administration, the emergency drouth relief schedule applies to the counties in which especially acute conditions have existed.

Followers of both factions assembled from all over the state and fighting broke out in front of the Anthony House April 20, 1874. David F. Schall, a guest in the hotel was killed, and two others were wounded. The controversy and continued fighting continued up and down the river from Pine Bluff to Palmar for nearly a month. "Lady Baxter" the giant black canon now mounted on the War Memorial building lawn, was salvaged from a dump where it had lain since the close of the Civil war and was placed at a point near Main and Markham streets by the Baxter forces to prevent boats from landing supplies for the Brooks forces.

The "war" was ended May 15, 1874, by a proclamation issued by President Grant recognizing Baxter as the lawfully elected governor.

Drouth Relief for 14 West Counties

Federal Emergency Aid Recommended by State Administrator Dyess

LITTLE ROCK.—(P)—T three-way appeal for federal aid in the drouth-ravaged counties of western Arkansas, was telegraphed to Washington Thursday by W. R. Dyess, state relief administrator, T. Roy Reid, assistant director of the State Extension Service, and C. S. Bouton, Department of Agriculture crop statistician.

Aside from the major crop damage the drouth has also ruined the garden program set up by the relief administration, reports said. Approximately $100,000 was spent for seed in this state, expected to produce a $6,500,000 return—but the drouth area's gardens are a total loss.

Appeal for Aid

LITTLE ROCK.—Recommendations that 14 western and northwestern Arkansas counties be placed on the emergency drouth relief schedule and that 10 additional counties be included in the secondary drouth relief area were made to the United States Department of Agriculture Wednesday by W. R. Dyess, state director of the Federal Emergency Relief Administration, following a detailed survey by T. J. Collier Jr., field representative of the rural rehabilitation division.

The emergency drouth relief schedule applies to the counties in which especially acute conditions have existed. Livestock buying by the Drouth Relief Service of the AAA. Special seed and feed loans by the Farm Credit Administration are limited to emergency areas. Counties recommended for inclusion in the emergency are Sharp, Izard, Marion, Boone, Carroll, Benton, Johnson, Pope, Franklin, Logan, Sebastian, Scott, Yell and Perry.

Secondary drouth relief areas cover those in which drouth conditions are serious, but in which the livestock situation is less acute and livestock buying operations are not being carried out. Special feed and seed loans are not made in such districts. Counties recommended for secondary drouth relief are Fulton, Baxter, Searcy, Newton, Madison, Washington, Crawford, Van Buren, Conway and Faulkner.

COAST GOVERNOR

His ears. Amid all the important issues centering about the trouble on San Francisco Bay, not the least interesting question is, what will this catastrophe do to Merriam?

A crisis of this kind can break the career of an elected official—and it can make it. Calvin Coolidge, dropped in a similar spot by the Boston police strike while he was governor of Massachusetts, made a ringing declaration about "the right to strike against the public safety" and went on until he occupied the White House.

How about Merriam?

His Task Heavy

To date he has acted promptly and firmly. He has declared: "My chief concern is in feeding over a million men, women and children whose food supply is cut off. . . . Riots or movements having the aspects of insurrection will be vigorously and uncompromisingly suppressed."

One question which may yet prove extremely thorny for the governor is the state-owned belt line railway, which skirts the waterfront of San Francisco and feeds the steamship piers. The decision whether or not to try to maintain service on this railway in defiance of the strikers will ultimately rest on Merriam.

If the governor takes firm steps to restore order, he runs the risk of alienating the sympathies of union men throughout the state and being branded as a tool of the industrialists. If he does not, he is apt to be damned by the business community and the general public.

Born on Farm

Frank Merriam was born 68 years ago on an Iowa farm. He worked his way through college, and for a time taught school in various cities in Iowa and Oklahoma. Then he entered newspaper work, editing small papers in both of those states; when he moved to California in 1910 because of illness in his family, he joined the advertising staff of a Long Beach daily, later becoming advertising manager. Afterward he left the newspaper field for various business ventures. He became president of a Long Beach bank, and continued as such while serving in the State Assembly.

Polled Largest Vote

He served there 12 years, and in 1926 won a four-year term as state senator. It was in 1930 that he first drew the attention of the state as a whole by campaigning for the Republican nomination for lieutenant-governor against Tallant Tubbs, the ardent anti-prohibitionist.

Winning the nomination by a narrow margin, Merriam went on to make a walkaway on the fall election, defeating his Democratic opponent by the largest vote ever accorded a candidate for the lieutenant-governorship.

Sought Governorship

This year Merriam decided to try to take the next step and become governor. Early in the spring he began planning a quiet campaign for the Republican nomination.

Then Governor Ralph fell seriously ill. Some of Merriam's associates urged him to insist that Ralph be declared unable to perform his duties, in which case the lieutenant-governor would automatically become acting governor.

Merriam flatly rejected the proposal. He said he hoped Governor Ralph would complete his term, and asserted that he never had and never would consider a plan to usurp his office. The stand won him many friends.

Then Governor Ralph died, and Merriam was sworn in. Already the longshoremen's strike was rumbling ominously along the waterfront of San Francisco. A few weeks later it developed into the general strike.

And Frank Merriam, the untired new occupant of the governor's chair, became the man of the hour.

Food, But They Had To Wait for Their Turn

Their pockets may be full, but their stomachs remain empty as these San Franciscans stand waiting, waiting, in a long queue before one of the few restaurants permitted by the unions to stay open. Women and children were usually given preference, and the men waited in the long line for their turn to enter the crowded restaurants, fight their way through the ranks before the counters, and get whatever was left, in many cases no more than coffee and rolls.

Tanks 'Move In' On the Waterfront

A grim note was added to the San Francisco waterfront, already shaken by violent fighting and the tramp of thousands of guardsmen, when tanks rumbled into the Embarcadero. Above are two of the blunt-nosed National Guard tanks brought in to be ready in case of trouble.

Striks Brings Scenes of Violence to This "Model Community"

The strike came at last to Kohler, Wis., "model community" centering about the plumbing equipment factory of Walter J. Kohler, former governor and "patriarch" of the town. Defying fumes from tear gas bombs hurled by police, striking pickets are shown in the top photo as they dumped several cars of coal standing at the entrance of the Kohler plant. In the lower photo, pickets are shown at the right charging non-striking office workers as they attempted to enter the plant. The strikers are demanding union recognition, higher wages and shorter hours.

They Got to Work—The Only Way There Was

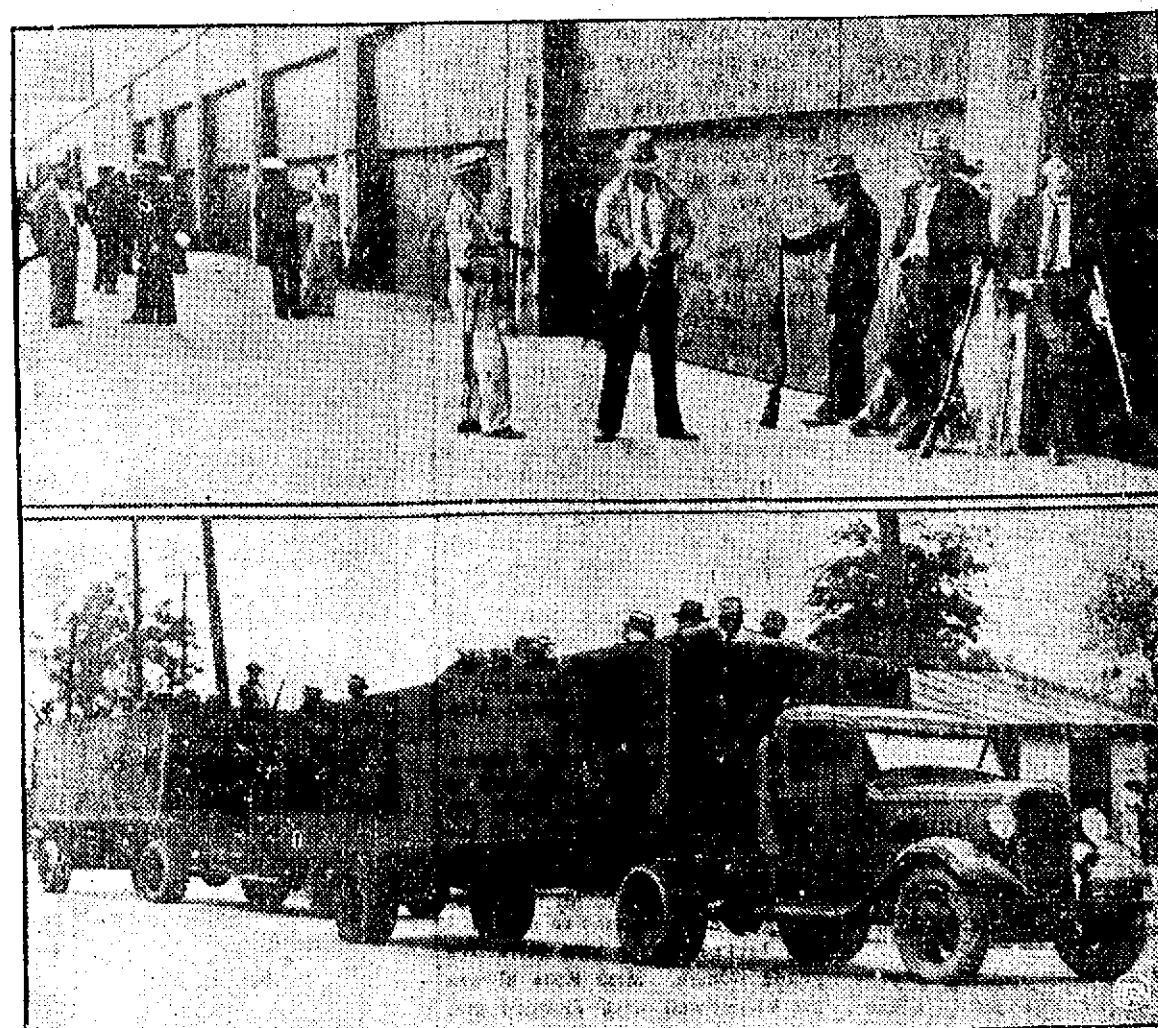

Overflowing the sidewalks and swarming into the street, San Franciscans got to work as best they could. Here is a crowd of commuters walking up lower Market street, normally one of the busiest traffic arteries in the city, now deserted by auto traffic. A city was suddenly dismounted from its accustomed wheels and set down on foot.

First Food to Move Into San Francisco Since Strike Blockade Began

Making good the declaration of Governor Merriam that foodstuffs would be moved into the San Francisco general strike area, this fleet of trucks, escorted by state highway patrol cars, motorcycles and sheriff's office attaches, is shown in Altamont Pass, near Oakland, California.

Dock Workers Guarded After Three Are Slain in Rioting

Heavy guards over the waterfront at Houston, Texas, protected independent dockmen at work, following the shooting to death of three nonunion dockhands in a clash with supposed strikers or strike sympathizers. Armed deputies and police patrolled the wharves, above, as pro-protected trucks, below, were used to transport workers to and from the docks.

TVA to Purchase Knoxville Utility

Private Concern Sells Out to Avoid Municipal Threat

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. —(AP)—The Tennessee Valley Authority Tuesday announced arrangements for purchase of properties of the Tennessee Public Service Company, local utility, for $2,088,000 contingent upon the willingness of the company's bondholders to turn in their bonds at the issue price of 95%.

An agreement was reached with the National Power & Light Company, owners of the Knoxville utility.

All the company's property except the street railway system in Knoxville and its transmission line between Knoxville, N. C. and Kingsport, Tenn., are included. Knoxville and 27 nearby communities will be served with TVA power produced at Muscle Shoals.

The announcement came as the city officials were opening bids for the first unit of a competing municipal distributing system, authorized in a bond election last November to be financed by a $3,500,000 loan grant from the Public Works Administration. The purchase will eliminate competition between the local utility and the city of Knoxville.

At first the TVA will operate the entire system. Later, Knoxville and the other near-by communities will acquire the distribution systems from the TVA and pay for them out of operating profits.

Only Real Father's Day

Noting all the talk about the low visibility of the bridegroom, Peggy points out that there is one time in his life when the spotlight falls blindingly upon him. It is when his daughter is married and they have to let father walk up the aisle with her.

WASH OUT 15 MILES OF KIDNEY TUBES

Win Back Pep...Vigor...Vitality

Medical authorities agree that your kidneys contain 15 MILES of tiny tubes of filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy.

If you have trouble with too frequent bladder passages with scanty amount, causing burning and discomfort, the 15 MILES of kidney tubes may be clogged. This danger signal may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and vitality, getting up nights, burning, swollen feet and ankles, rheumatic pains and dizziness. If kidneys don't empty 3 times every day and get rid of 4 pounds of waste matter, your body will take up these poisons causing serious trouble. It may knock you out and lay you up for many months. Don't wait. Ask your druggist for DOAN'S PILLS... a doctor's prescription... which has been used successfully by millions of kidney sufferers for over 40 years. They give quick relief and will help to wash out the 15 MILES of kidney tubes.

But don't take chances with strong drugs or so-called "kidney cures" that claim to do you up in 15 minutes, for they may seriously injure and irritate delicate tissues. Insist on DOAN'S PILLS... the old reliable... that contain no "dope" or habit-forming drugs. Be sure you get DOAN'S PILLS at your druggist. © 1934, Foster-Milburn Co.

SOPHIE KERR'S GREAT NOVEL "STAY OUT OF MY LIFE!"

By Sophie Kerr

CHAPTER XXV

THE last day of Commencement the dean's wife telephoned, in a hurry. "Amy, Rufus is terribly sick, one of those awful stomach upsets he has when he gets too tired, and I'm in such a fix—we were to have two of the trustees for dinner tonight, you know, Wilbur Barney and Louis Prentice, a couple of old tycoons as ever were! Could you take them? I'll send over the whole dinner, all cooked, and a maid to serve it. And listen, Amy, there's plenty for a dozen, so ask some more people if you feel equal to it. There's gallons of soup and three roast ducks, and I'll send cocktails and some really good old Burgundy Rufus has been saving, and, oh, Amy, do give them a real time. They've both been so generous with the Endowment Fund and we want them now to do something about the scholarships—you see how it is! I do wish you could dig up an entertaining pretty woman or two, but I suppose that's impossible. Marburg might be Sahara so far as extra women are concerned, but of course they'll enjoy you, dear. They haven't got their wives with them, thank heaven!"

It was a nuisance, thought Amy, but she could not refuse. She knew both Mr. Prentice and Mr. Barney. They were, as the dean's wife had said, tycoons, and rather formidable tycoons, too. Greedy and autocratic. Now who on earth could she rake up as extra guests at this late hour—not her father and mother, for they had a party of their own. Indeed no one in the faculty circle was available, not even an untended instructor. Edgar Moreland and his pretty young wife. Yes, they might come. She telephoned at once and they accepted. Then she remembered Miss Rosa Terry.

Miss Rosa's voice, over the wire, sounded very sprightly. "Why, I love it, Amy, only—Jane's here, again for a day or so, came to finish up some of my business. But darsenay she won't mind."

"Oh, bring Jane along—no, it will even up the table instead of throwing it out. Half past seven, then."

THERE was plenty to do to get ready for the dinner. The dining-room required extra cleaning. Leaves must be put into the table glass and china and silver arranged for a strange maid's serving. Mrs. Pearce, ever available, would help. She had been on hand every day during Commencement Week, because Amy had to be out so much. She could give Nancy her supper and put her to bed and still be ready to open the door for the guests and later help behind the scenes. Amy wondered what it was. She had only two evening dresses and one had been torn to rags at the Senior dance. The other and older was very tired and shabby and just now spotted from a spilled mayonnaise at a reception. With quiet resolution she went to the closet and took down her wedding dress, unwrapped it from its enfolding tissue paper and muslin. It was not in style, but its simplicity, the quality of its ivory satin made it dateless, classic.

When Howard came in, late and hurrying, she was already dressed and the shining satin was covered by an engulging apron, the skirt tucked up, while she finished the last things in dining room and kitchen. That was why he did not see her until he ran downstairs just as the first guests rang the bell. He stopped and exclaimed: "Why, Amy—darling! You look like an angel—that lovely dress—"

"Do you remember it?" "Do I! What do you take me for?" He could not go on, for Mr. Prentice was entering, red and puffy and obviously disgruntled at being switched from the dean to an obscure and young member of the faculty. But he unbent at sight of Amy with the cocktail tray in the background. Perhaps it would not be too bad, after all.

And now Edgar Moreland was coming and Alice, his wife—pink cheeks and curly hair and ruffled pink organdy—and at the sight of another pretty woman Mr. Prentice began definitely to brighten. Barney was next, tall and gray and skeptical, but he also liked pretty women and cocktails and was much less assertive of himself and his money and opinions and prejudices than Prentice.

AND now Jane and Miss Rosa were coming in. Miss Rosa trailing her best black chiffon and glittering with her entire set of old pluk topaz, necklaces, "brooch, bracelets, earrings, and behind her, with the expression of one who lends herself to a small town diversion with kindly patronage, came Jane, Jane at her most sophisticated in a bareback golden frock, pointed up with a jade cigarette holder and an enormous jade clasp on her girdle. The borrowed maid appeared at the door. "Dinner is served, Mrs. Jackson," she murmured.

Amy led them out, seated them—Howard at the head, Miss Rosa at his right. Yes, and she would put Jane at his left. Mr. Barney at the foot, Alice at his left and Prentice between Alice and Jane, leaving Edgar and herself to fill the other side. Prentice beamed to find himself between these two attractive young women. Miss Rosa always got along well with Howard and Edgar. Jane alone was discontented, that fat little pig beside her was clamoring for her attention. She wanted to talk only to Howard. She wondered if he had asked to have her beside him, or if Amy had arranged it. At any rate, there she was and she would make the most of it. "I must finish my story about Mr. Sears," she said, eagerly. "You remember, the man whose house you wouldn't help me buy?" At the same time Mr. Barney opened with an easy gambit to Amy: "Aren't those old-fashioned Pink Daily roses in your centerpiece? I haven't seen any for years. They used to grow in my grandmother's garden in Maryland when I was a little chap."

"They grow in my garden," said Amy. "They only last a little while, but I love the color. And wasn't it clever of Alice to wear a dress that matches them exactly?" It was even cleverer, thought Mr. Barney, that she had passed him over so neatly to the girl in pink. "I must tell Lowe, if I see him again, that his daughter's a wonder. By George, she'd stand out anywhere. Beautiful and gracious. Knows what to do. This dinner's excellent. She's had the sense to keep everything within her limits, no trying for effect or putting on style. I wonder where she got the Burgundy. It tastes like a Romance. Cont, be hanged if it doesn't."

As the dinner went on Jane saw clearly that it was Amy to whom everyone was involuntarily turning. She drew them without effort and there was a sort of wistful seeking in their gaze, as if they felt a beauty which held something rare and inscrutable. It made Jane angry. "What is it?" she thought. "I can't understand it. I simply can't. There she sits in that old white dress and she isn't exerting herself, but they're all centered on her. Even this ape Prentice who got all fazed up about me when I first came in. He keeps looking at her, too. Edgar's always been in love with her—I hope that little pink jelly-bean he married knows it! And as for Howard, he doesn't see that anyone else exists! If I could only stop wanting him, I could have loved him a hundred times as much as she does. Anyway, it's my child in this house. He calls himself its father. That's something, even if Amy calls herself its mother. It's my child, I'm glad I let her take it. Oh, she's so damned smug. What's her secret!"

Amy sitting down the table did not know that Jane resented and hated her anew. She did not hate Jane. She did not think of her, nor of the others, very clearly. They were all blurred except Howard. "This is the end," something within her was reminding her. "This is the end. Tomorrow everything will be changed. Tomorrow we must start a new strange life in a new strange world. Tomorrow! Tomorrow!" (Copyright, 1934, by Sophie Kerr) (To Be Continued.)

Senator Divorced by Mrs. McAdoo

Wilson's Daughter, and His Cabinet Member, "Incompatible"

LOS ANGELES, Calif. —(AP)—Mrs. Eleanor Wilson McAdoo, daughter of the late President Wilson, obtained a divorce from William Gibbs McAdoo, Democratic junior senator from California, in Superior court here Tuesday.

Within 20 minutes after she had filed a suit complaining of incompatibility and of the climate at Washington, where her husband spends so much time, she was granted a decree and custody of the couple's two children. A property settlement which was not made public, was approved and then withdrawn from the record by her lawyer.

Senator McAdoo, who will be 51 October 31, did not come to the court room. Through his lawyer he filed a formal denial of the charges of "mental cruelty." The entire testimony required only slightly more than five minutes.

Mrs. McAdoo, who is 43, told of being unhappy by divergent interests of herself and her husband. She said he was mainly interested in politics and insisted on remaining in Washington, where she could not stay on account of the effect of the climate to her health. She said her main interests were in artistic pursuits such as painting and sculpture.

The results of this divergence of interests, she said, caused her "mental suffering, and aggravated her nervous condition."

In a statement Mrs. McAdoo said "the incompatibilities which have arisen out of our divergent tastes and interests drove us reluctantly to the conclusion that a legal separation was the only solution."

"As a senator," she said, "Mr. McAdoo is obliged to spend the larger portion of each year in Washington. The climate there does not agree with me and it is impossible for me to live there. I have, and always shall have the greatest admiration and affection for Mr. McAdoo."

The senator said she had "correctly stated the reasons for the separation."

"I have nothing to add, he said, except that I deeply regret it and devoutly wish that it could have been averted."

"I shall always entertain the warmest friendship and admiration for Mrs. McAdoo."

Engineer Goes on Stand in Defense

Millard Hickman Tells Own Story of Night of Murder

SAN FRANCISCO.—(AP)—Millard Hickman testified at his murder trial Tuesday and told the story he hopes will save him from the gallows.

The 45-year-old marine engineer narrated events of the evening of May 12, and accounted almost to the minute for actions in the early hours of May 13 when Miss Louise Jepperson, 23-year-old Ogden (Ut.) woman, was being attacked and strangled in Golden Gate park. He told calmly of the night of revelry that preceded the finding of Miss Jepperson's body before dawn in a tunnel at the park.
